

BAPRAS

BAPRAS are very keen to promote plastic surgery to medical students as they get no instruction at all in their courses.

We have run a very successful day in October at the College where almost 200 students turned up. I have certainly spoken earlier in the year at Imperial College, and also on several occasions here in Liverpool to the 'Scousers.'

We do plan to hold another day next year, probably again at the College but there is also talk of running it out to the regions, and Manchester, Birmingham as well as Liverpool have shown interest.

The other tack we have taken is through the Plastic surgery tutor at the Raven, with core skills workshops being run regionally.

We would be delighted to be involved with MSLC if we can be of assistance.

Roger